The article describes the scientific views on the Land Code in 1922 in then researchers.

Land Code, land law, land legislation, land science, land and legal institutions.

The scientific legacy of the Soviet period some scientists wrongly neglected and poorly studied, because today they work sometimes can provide answers to modern problems that confronts national researchers who are actively interested in science retrospective aspects of land law, new frontiers and horizons of research. Therefore, the purpose of this publication is to reveal the creative heritage of the then Soviet scientists of the characteristics of the Land Code 1922 and assess their contribution to the science of land law.

During the development of the Land Code of 1922 the state had the task to rebuild agriculture, it was destroyed by the imperialist and civil war, and legally formalize the main achievements of the time in the field of agriculture. The Land Code of the Ukrainian SSR was adopted at the third session of the All-Ukrainian Central Executive Committee October 16, 1922, which was approved by the Bureau VUTSVK November 29, 1922. It was first codified act Soviet land laws urgency adoption was dictated by the need legal registration of the land policy of Soviet power in Ukraine. The main content of this policy lies in giving land to peasants, thus contributing to the revival of agriculture, which were after the revolutionary events of 1917-1921 in very serious condition. The adoption of the Land Code of the Ukrainian SSR in 1922 was of great importance for contemporary experts on land law. On the pages of the periodical press began to appear scientific research devoted to the analysis of individual land and legal institutions, and line-item comments Land Code.

Considerable space occupied land code of Ukrainian SSR 1922 in the work of Professor Moses Markovic Gershon. This is evidenced by a number of his comments in collaboration with E.I. Kelmanom like "comments for the Land Code of Ukrainian SSR" (H., 1924, 1925), "Land Code of Ukrainian SSR. Text and code comments" (H., 1924, 1928, 1929) and the sole work "Land Code of Ukrainian SSR. Advisor to the peasants " (H., 1926, 1927).

In summary our study can be generalized to make a conclusion that the scientists of that time in his works performed dogmatic interpretation of the provisions of the Land Code 1922, giving his comments revealed the contents of some articles of the land and legal institutions and principles of contemporary land rights, analyzed the structure of the Code, in some quests commented scientific works of contemporary experts on land law and indicated ways to implement certain norms in practice.
